KILBANE RETAINS FEATHER TITLE-GIANTS LENGTHEN THEIR LEAD

Frush Is Knocked Out The Winner, the Loser, and the Promoter Kilbane Keeps Title

Baltimore Lad Is Floored Four Times During Fight. Title Never in Danger.

By WILLIAM STRANG.

RINGSIDE, DUNN FIELD, CLEVELAND, Sept. 17—Old blood flowed in triumph over young here today when Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, knocked out Danny Frush, of Baltimore, in defense of his featherweight boxing title.

The end came after one minute, twenty-four seconds of the seventh round. Kilbane was master of every situation after the first round, when Frush with a left hook staggered the champion, but he recovered quickly.

The knockout followed a series of ensational blows which Kilbane aunched shortly after the bell He brought about the befinning of the end by catching the challenger with a stiff right hook, and Referee Kelley counted eight before Frush got to his feet.

On top of Frush all the time, he suddenly shot a left hock that carried flush to his rival's jaw and Frush ried flush to his rival's jaw and Frush took a count of nine. He was out apparently on his feet with guard down. He was an easy target for the champ who rushed again and shot his favorite blew, a right hook to the jaw.

Frush Couldn't Get Up.

Referee Kelley then counted the challenger out. Frush was unable to get to his feet.

To ring critics who expected to see Kilbane only a shell of his former self, a big surprise was in store. The champ fought deliberately during the early stages and his attacks were well timed.
